- c) Respect of the human person : Respect of current the international and national laws (discrimination, labour code, human rights, children rights, ...)

2. The parties commit to conduct a feasibility study before taking any action and to implement best ethical practices :

A. In a humanitarian project:

- a) Establishment of a partnership with the beneficiary(ies)
 - Before the deployment of any project, it is required to set up at least a bilateral partnership, detailing the expressed needs of the partner.
 - Definition of objectives, as well as financial, human and material means for the partnership set up.
- b) Evaluation of the supply possibilities and conditions
 - The priority must be supplying locally whenever possible
 - Packaging must be adapted to the means of transport and to the handling constraints of the consignee.
 - A cost analysis must be conducted, taking into account the overall supply chain of the shipped goods.
- c) Identification of technical constraints and procedures to apply.
 - Revision of technical equipment with certification showing proper functioning.
 - Study of technical requirements: Conformity to standard country norms, general technical requirements (electrical installation, storage ...), availability of spare parts, consumables, availability of technical documents.
 - Skill assessment of the project staff's, at pick-up and upon receipt of the goods, for its installation, use, maintenance, and management (receipt, distribution, inventory management)
 - Declaration of donation or free-gift of goods to the local authorities is mandatory.

B. For the Fair Trade section

- a) Completion of a market analysis to determine what kind of products are to be sold, the imported quantities, the distribution network, the commercial circuit, ...
- b) Guarantee of a fair compensation for the producer (prices and terms of payment are set beforehand)
- c) Respect of the working conditions : wage setting, health care, compliance with local laws (work schedules, age, ...)
- d) Commitment to community development: Reinvestment of profit in community development actions, enhancing working conditions, or acquiring new working tools.

C. In local solidarity actions

- a) Respect of legislation and sanitary norms :
Hygiene, expiration date, cold chain,
- b) Sale of products to the beneficiaries at a lower price than market prices.
- c) Going beyond assistantship in order to preserve people's dignity and helping them recover their independence sustainably: The establishment of a human connection and the quality of the relationship are top priorities.

Section 6 – Members responsibilities

In any case, the member is always responsible of his acts and the information he shares.

Article 7 – Anti-corruption measures

The contractual compensation of Partner/Supplier/Service provider must be the only compensation given within the scope of this contract.

The Partner/Supplier/Service provider and his staff must refuse any sort of advantage and refrain from taking part in any activities that come into conflict with their duties towards Bioport

Bioport has the right to terminate any contract if there are evidence of any form of corruption that occurred at any step of the Partner/Supplier/Service provider's selection procedure.

In the present clause, corruption should be understood as any proposal or any consent to offer to anyone an illegal payment, a gift, a gratification, or a commission in order to encourage or to reward someone, so that he undertakes or refrains to undertake an activity related to the granting or the execution of the contract.

Any offer or any on-going contract will be rejected/terminated, as soon as evidence of extraordinary commercial fees are found at the time of the granting or execution of the contract.

Extraordinary commercial fees should be understood as any commission that is not mentioned in the contract, that doesn't reward a legitimate and effective service, that is paid to a tax heaven, or to any non-identified recipient or to any company that resembles a dummy-company.

Section 8 – Sanctions

Failure to meet any of the clauses mentioned in the present charter will lead to the exclusion of the contracting party, potentially followed by criminal prosecution as permitted by law.

The humanitarian logistic platform is free to choose which sanction suits best, as long as the reason of the blame is clearly explained to the offender.

In witness whereof the parties have signed the present charter.
